Program Description and Accreditation/CME

The field of gastroenterology continues to experience an introduction of new and novel therapeutic options and diagnostic techniques affecting numerous areas of GI disease management and patient care. During the program, a number of gastroenterology and hepatology related topics will be explored including eosinophilic esophagitis, Barrett’s esophagus, postoperative Crohn’s disease, enteral feeding, serrated polyps and polyposis, colonoscopy complications, anorectal bleeding, fecal incontinence, sphincter of Oddi dysfunction, pancreatic cysts, surgical approach to malignant lesions of the liver, clotting disorders in liver disease, and an update on the treatment of HCV. Case-based discussions with fellows and panel discussions with expert faculty will occur allowing the participants to gain practical application of key learning points. This program is designed for gastroenterologists, primary care physicians, physician assistants, nurse practitioners and nurses interested in the latest information on diagnostic GI and state of the art treatment of these illnesses.

This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the accreditation requirements and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education through the joint providership of the ACG, the Virginia Gastroenterological Society, and the Old Dominion Society of Gastroenterology Nurses and Associates. The American College of Gastroenterology is accredited by the ACCME to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The American College of Gastroenterology designates this live activity for a maximum of 10 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Each physician should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation.

Nursing Credits
This educational activity has been submitted to the Society of Gastroenterology Nurses and Associates, Inc. for approval. The Society of Gastroenterology Nurses and Associates, Inc. is accredited as an approver of continuing nursing education by the American Nurses Credentialing Center’s Commission on Accreditation.
