

2017 Master Recipient Philip O. Katz, MD, MACG

Philip O. Katz, MD, MACG is the Director of Motility Laboratories at the Jay Monahan Center for Gastrointestinal Health, Weill Cornell Medicine. Dr. Katz received his medical degree from the Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, NC in 1978. He served his residency and chief residency in internal medicine, followed by a fellowship in gastroenterology, at Wake Forest University/North Carolina Baptist Hospital. He completed a faculty development fellowship at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, MD. Dr. Katz is board certified in internal medicine and gastroenterology.

He is a recognized national authority on esophageal disease. His research interests include the pharmacodynamic effects of proton pump inhibitors, all aspects of gastroesophageal reflux disease, esophageal motility disorders and esophageal pain perception. He has an active clinical practice, specializing in complex esophageal disease and has been a teacher and mentor to numerous GI trainees and residents.

Dr. Katz has served the American College of Gastroenterology in numerous capacities throughout his career and was privileged to serve as President from 2009-2010. He is the founding editor of the ACG Education Universe and the current co-editor. He has contributed to the publication of over 180 peerreviewed papers, as well as numerous abstracts, books, book chapters, and monographs.